POLITICS AND PUBLIC POLICY IN SCOTLAND

Author: Malcolm, Michael Keating and James Mitchell
Macmillan 1989. £21.00 (cloth), £11.00 (paper)

For those not already familiar with the work of the authors, this book represents a clear and comprehensive discussion of the political and public policy-making processes in Scotland. It provides a valuable overview of the political system, including the role of the devolved government and the Scottish Parliament, and examines the policy-making process in Scotland in detail. The authors also discuss the impact of devolution on the political landscape of Scotland and provide insights into the challenges and opportunities facing the new political system.

NORTHERN IRELAND

The Violence of Unionism

Author: Robert J. O'Neill
Macmillan 1989. £14.95

In this book, Robert J. O'Neill provides a detailed analysis of the political and social factors that have contributed to the violence in Northern Ireland. He argues that the violence is not simply a result of religious or political differences, but is also a product of economic and social inequalities. O'Neill's book highlights the importance of addressing these underlying issues in order to achieve a lasting peace in Northern Ireland.

NORTHERN IRELAND AND THE EU:

The Politics of Northern Ireland's Membership

Author: Paul Hainsworth and Martin T. Smyth
Pittman 1990. £9.95

This book examines the political and economic implications of Northern Ireland's membership of the European Union. It provides a detailed analysis of the impact of EU membership on the region, including the implications for the economy, the political landscape, and the prospects for peace and stability.

CONTINUING RELIGIOUS DISCRIMINATION IN EMPLOYMENT

Author: Roger Caldecott
CULLEN PRESS 1989. £7.95

This book examines the issue of religious discrimination in the workplace, focusing specifically on Northern Ireland. It provides a detailed analysis of the legal and policy frameworks in place to address this issue, and highlights the ongoing challenges that remain.

PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION

This section includes a variety of readings on public administration, with a focus on issues related to Northern Ireland. The readings cover topics such as the impact of devolution on the political landscape, the role of the devolved government in making policy, and the challenges facing the new political system.

REVIEWS

This section includes reviews of various books and articles, with a focus on recent publications related to Northern Ireland. The reviews provide insights into the latest research and analysis on the political and social issues facing the region.

For those interested in learning more about the political and social issues facing Northern Ireland, these readings provide a valuable resource for further study and discussion.